

Accomplishments:

Through this assignment, I believe that I have developed a fairly good web programming foundation. Apart from implementing basic functions, I have tried to concentrate on aspects such as good database design, security of data, as well as good abstraction and software engineering practices. I have also tried to safeguard against loopholes (such as making sure non users cannot access pages meant for users). All in all, I am satisfied with my first ever web application, and I hope I have managed to do a satisfactory job.

N.B: I have provided a mysql dump as I could not find a hosting service that supports foreign key constraints through phpmyadmin. I have also not provided a schema file as a relational view of the database can be accessed on phpmyadmin.
